Bio

Sara Jenkins-Sutton, Vice President and Co-Owner of Topiarius Urban Gardening and Floral Design, is the company's expert in design and décor projects as well as marketing and financial management. Jenkins-Sutton understands how to create the right balance in an arrangement, using vivid colors and distinctive designs. She finds the right trims to make the vision of her clients come to life.

Since enlisting her creative skills for the company 2005, Topiarius yielded a new avenue for event, wedding, and home floral design and décor. Channeling the same attention to detail and knowledge, Topiarius commits to their other landscape and maintenance services of the business; Jenkins-Sutton has blossomed into the mastery of greenery, taking floral design to a new realm.

Under Jenkins-Sutton's singular direction from 2007 - 2012, the company administered floral work for weddings and large events for clients such as Swedish Covenant Hospital and Groupon. Under the leadership of Sara and her husband, Craig Jenkins-Sutton, co-owner of Topiarius, the company has doubled in size and sales since 2010.

Prior to Topiarius, Jenkins-Sutton oversaw youth conferences where she planned and managed events ranging from 300 to 5,000 attendees. Her extensive background in meeting coordination and events provided extensive experience with event details, budgets, vendor coordination and onsite event management.

Jenkins-Sutton earned a Masters in Christian Education from North Park Seminary in Chicago, a B.A. from North Park College in Chicago and a certificate in Human Resources from the School of Business at North Park University in Chicago. She has also taken extensive professional classes in greenery from the Chicago Botanic Gardens.
